SCV Water Continues to Support Local Businesses with Water Champions Program

Take Advantage of “The Great Leak Sweep”, a Free Water-use Efficiency Service for SCV Businesses

Earlier this year, SCV Water launched its Water Champions Program, focused on supporting local businesses as they prioritize efficient water use as part of their overall operations. The initiative provides businesses with information about programs and resources geared toward water efficiency and gives them an opportunity to showcase their water conservation leadership to the community.

“With the initial launch of our Water Champions program this past spring, we were able to start a conversation with over 1,600 of our business customers about water use, reducing inefficiencies and waste, and how to implement water-saving habits,” said SCV Water Sustainability Manager Matt Dickens. “Of those commercial customers, 137 took the next step by participating in The Great Leak Sweep, SCV Water’s free water-use efficiency check-up for businesses.”

The Great Leak Sweep (part of the Water Champions Program) is a free service that helps businesses save water by detecting and fixing leaks; supplying water-saving devices (if needed); identifying other water savings opportunities to help lower water bills; and providing rebate and water-saving resource information. Upon completion of the check-up, participants are provided with a Water Champion decal to display in the front window of their business.

“More recently, this past September, WaterWise visited an additional 364 local businesses and completed 57 checkups,” said SCV Water Conservation Specialist Dolores Campos. “These businesses are setting a positive example in the community, and we look forward to adding more Water Champions as the program continues to grow.”
